PUBLIC AND PRIVATE HIGH SCHOOLS.

In every State the public high school is now firmly established as a part of the educational system. It is no longer merely a link between the elementary school and the college, but attempts to prepare for intelligent citizenship the common-school pupil who has not the time or the means for acquiring a higher education. The public school systems in most of the States provide for a carefully devised scheme of studies covering 12 grades and extending through as many years. The first 8 are known as the elementary grades, and the grades from 9 to 12, inclusive, are the secondary or high-school grades. In a few of the States the elementary schools have only 7 grades and in the whole country the public high schools having courses of three years or less include about one-third of the total number. In some localities the term "secondary" is applied to the upper grades of the elementary school, but generally the secondary school is the high school, and the meaning of the term is so restricted in the reports of the Bureau of Education. The private high schools and academies and college preparatory schools maintain courses of study practically parallel with the courses in public high schools, and all of these schools are referred to as secondary schools.

In collecting statistics of secondary schools every effort is made to exclude from enumeration in high-school grades all pupils who are not actually pursuing secondary studies. To assist the high-school principal in making the classification the following definition appears on every schedule sent from this bureau for the purpose of collecting secondary-school statistics:

> Secondary student (or high-school student) should be taken as meaning a student who has completed an elementary school course at least seven years in length (ordinarily eight years) or its equivalent, and has pursued within the past year at least two recognized high-school studies, e. g., Latin, French, German, algebra, geometry, physical geography, physics, general history.

In former years all schools reporting five or more secondary students were counted in the aggregate number of high schools, but for the year 1910–11 only schools reporting 10 or more secondary students were considered. Several hundred schools were thus omitted from the statistical summaries.

The failure of many high-school principals to respond to the repeated requests for information sent from this bureau keeps the reported secondary enrollment for the whole country some thousands below the actual number which should be credited to the high schools, public and private.

In the year 1909–10 the combined enrollment of the public and private secondary schools passed the million mark, the aggregate being 1,032,461. Of this number 10,213 public high schools reported 915,061 secondary students, 398,525 boys and 516,536 girls. For the same year 1,781 private high schools and academies reported 117,400 secondary students, 55,474 boys and 61,926 girls.

For the year 1910–11 there were 10,234 public high schools, reporting 984,677 secondary students, 433,053 boys and 551,624 girls. There were 1,979 private high schools and academies, reporting 130,649 secondary students, 61,298 boys and 69,351 girls.

The aggregate of 1,115,326 was 82,864 more than the number of secondary students reported by the public and private high schools for the year ended June, 1910.

Not included in the above enumeration are the secondary students in the preparatory departments of universities and colleges, in normal schools, and in certain manual and industrial training schools. This number, which is not below 100,000, does not enter into the statistical summaries of this chapter.

The table which follows gives comparatively for public and private high schools the number of schools, the number of teachers, and the number of students reported for each year since 1889–90. The rate of increase in enrollment in these schools is much greater than the rate of increase in population. In 1890 the public and private high schools enrolled nearly 5 secondary students to the 1,000 of population, in 1900 the number was 8 to the 1,000, and in 1910 the enrollment was 11 to the 1,000 of population.

If the secondary students reported in all other institutions outside of public and private high schools be added to the totals in the above table, it will be found that there were 367,003 secondary students reported in 1890, or nearly 6 to the 1,000 of population; 719,241 in 1900, or more than 9 to the 1,000; and 1,131,466 reported in 1910, or over 12 to the 1,000 of population.

For the two decades the growth of public high schools from year to year has been steady and rapid, while the progress of private high schools has been more fluctuating. In years of business depression, when the private schools are more directly affected, hundreds of principals decline to give information. This failure to report causes an undue falling off in the number of schools and in the aggregate enrollment in years of adversity.

For the past two or three years the private high schools have been more prosperous than at any time in the past decade. By persistent efforts the bureau has been able to secure for 1910–11 reports from many schools which have been silent for years and in the same time some new schools have been added to the lists.

The relative progress of public and private high schools since 1890 may be learned from the following table:

For five successive years the enrollment by grades in public and private high schools has been summarized and presented in this chapter. Prior to 1907 the statistical schedules sent to high-school principals did not ask for the enrollment in each year of the high-school course. That year 7,624 of the 8,804 public high schools and 946 of the 1,434 private high schools reported the number of students in each of the secondary grades. For 1908 complete returns by grade were received from the 8,960 public high schools reporting and from 1,172 of the private high schools. For 1909 the 9,317 public high schools reported enrollment by grade and 1,212 of the 1,301 private high schools. The 10,213 public high schools reporting in 1910 gave enrollment by grades, and 1,657 of the 1,781 private high schools. The returns for 1911 show that the 10,234 public high schools reported the number of students in each year of the course, while 1,841 of the 1,979 private high schools were complete in this respect. Following is a synopsis of the number of boys and girls in each year of the course in each class of schools in 1910–11:

Public and private high-school students classified by year of course and sex.

	Schools reporting.	First year.		Second year.		Third year.		Fourth year.		Total.
		Boys.	Girls.	Boys.	Girls.	Boys.	Girls.	Boys.	Girls.	Boys.	Girls.

From the above enrollment figures it is ascertained that 41.90 per cent of 1,105,454 secondary students belonged to the first year, 26.75 per cent to the second year, 18.34 per cent to the third year, and 13.01 to the fourth year. These percentages vary but little from those given for each of the four years preceding. Some 10 years ago the bureau made an estimate of the number in each of the four years of the high-school course, based upon the grade enrollment published for a small number of secondary schools. That estimate gave 43 per cent in the first year, 26 per cent in the second, 18 per cent in the third, and 13 per cent in the fourth. The accuracy of this estimate is sustained by actual returns from nearly all the schools as shown in the following synopsis for the past five years:

PUBLIC HIGH-SCHOOL STATISTICS.

The statistics of the 10,234 public high schools reporting to this bureau for the school year ended June, 1911, will be found summarized in Tables 1 to 13 in this chapter. As shown in Table 1 these schools had 45,167 teachers of the secondary or high-school grades, 20,152 men and 25,015 women. Here was an increase of 3,500 teachers over the preceding year. There was an increase of 1,262 in the number of men and 3,238 in the number of women in the teaching force.

There was a total of 984,677 secondary students enrolled in the public high schools, 433,053 boys and 551,624 girls. There was an increase of 34,528 boys and 35,088 girls over the enrollment of 1909–10. Included in the total was an enrollment of 14,512 colored students, 4,963 boys and 9,549 girls. Many of the high schools still maintain elementary grades. In these grades there were 166,462 pupils, 80,827 boys and 85,635 girls.

Tables 2 and 3 give the enrollment by courses of study. In the academic courses there were 790,261 students reported by 10,111 schools, in commercial courses 110,925 students reported by 1,752 schools, in technical and manual training courses 66,510 students reported by 687 schools, in training courses for teachers 14,680 students reported by 711 schools, in agricultural courses 20,042 students reported by 965 schools, and in domestic economy 32,876 students reported by 591 schools. These courses overlap more or less. Most of the students in courses in manual training and domestic economy are also counted by the principals in academic courses.

Table 4 shows that 55,750 students are reported as preparing for college, 31,698 boys and 24,052 girls. Of the total number, 29,478 were preparing for the college classical course, 11,877 boys and 17,601 girls. There were 19,821 boys and 6,451 girls preparing for college scientific courses, a total of 26,272.

In the class of 1911 there were 119,981 public high-school graduates, 47,497 boys and 72,484 girls, as shown in Table 5. Of these graduates, 41,392 had declared their intention of going to college, 21,347 boys and 20,045 girls. There were also 18,696 graduates who had prepared for admission to normal schools and other higher institutions, 5,284 boys and 13,412 girls.

Table 6 shows that the percentage of boys in the total enrollment of 984,677 was 43.98 and the percentage of girls 56.02. The percentage of students in college classical preparatory courses was 2.99 and the percentage in college scientific preparatory courses was 2.67. This percentage of graduates to the total number enrolled was 12.18. Of the total number of graduates it appears that 34.50 per cent had prepared for college.

In number but little more than 8 per cent of the public high schools will be found in cities of 8,000 population and over, but more than 47 per cent of the high-school enrollment is reported from these cities. Table 7 shows that in these cities there are 846 public high schools, with 17,213 teachers and 464,543 students. The averages indicate 20 teachers to a school, 27 students to a teacher, and 549 students to a school. Table 8 shows that outside of the cities of 8,000 population and over there are 9,388 high schools reported, with 27,954 teachers and 520,134 students. The averages indicate 3 teachers to a school, nearly 19 students to a teacher, and over 55 students to a school.

Table 9 is a summary showing the number of public high schools having courses of study extending through 4 years. There were 6,732 of these schools reporting in 1911, with 38,780 teachers and 869,557 students. The remaining 3,502 high schools had courses less than 4 years. These schools had 6,387 teachers and 115,120 students. It may be seen that the 4-year high schools enrolled more than 88 per cent of the total number of public high-school students. The following comparison for the past 3 years indicates the growth of the 4-year high schools:

To find by States the location of the public high schools having courses of less than four years, Table 9 should be compared with Table 1, taking the difference between the first columns. The columns for teachers and those for students may be likewise compared. Such a comparison by geographical division gives the following results:

The enrollment by grade for all the high schools reporting is exhibited in Tables 10 and 11, one table showing the enrollment by sex and the other giving the total enrollment for each year and the percentage as compared with the aggregate enrollment. It is shown that the percentages are 42.79 for the first year, 26.73 for the second, 17.97 for the third, and 12.51 for the fourth year. These percentages are exhibited in a synopsis near the beginning of this chapter, compared with like percentages for the private high schools.

Tables 12 and 13 summarize the statistics of equipment and income of the high schools from which financial statements could be obtained. A complete and satisfactory exhibit can not be made for the reason that the cost of most of the high schools is not separated from the general expenditures of the systems to which they belong. This applies particularly to the public high schools of the smaller cities.

The libraries of 9,052 public high schools had in 1911 an aggregate of 5,359,543 volumes. The value of grounds and buildings reported by 8,047 schools aggregated $248,527,048, while the scientific apparatus and other equipment used by 8,066 schools was valued at $16,448,411. The money value of endowment possessed by 111 public high schools aggregated $3,291,594. The expenditures for sites and buildings during the year 1910–11, as reported by 2,607 schools, aggregated $24,299,909. The aggregate working income of 3,757 schools was $19,742,043, of which $18,331,973 was from public appropriations.

PRIVATE HIGH SCHOOLS AND ACADEMIES.

The statistics of the 1,979 private high schools and academies reporting to this bureau in 1911 will be found summarized in Tables 14 to 28. These schools reported 12,073 teachers, 4,986 men and 7,087 women, as instructors of secondary students. The enrollment in the high-school grades was 130,649 students, 61,298 boys and 69,351 girls. The total includes 5,327 colored students, nearly all in the negro schools of the two southern divisions. The schools maintaining departments below high-school grades reported 84,141 elementary pupils, 35,392 boys and 48,749 girls.

Tables 15 and 16 show the distribution of students by courses of study. There were 113,259 students in academic courses, 11,956 in commercial courses, 3,502 in technical or manual training, 5,246 in training courses for teachers, 2,188 in agricultural courses, and 5,028 in courses in domestic economy. Many students in the academic courses are also reported in other courses of study.

The statistics relating to college preparatory students are given in Tables 17, 18, and 19. There were 22,546 students reported as actually preparing for college, 16,301 boys and 6,245 girls. There were 13,448 students preparing for the college classical course, or 10.29 per cent of the total enrollment, and 9,098 preparing for college scientific courses, or 6.96 per cent of the total. In the class of 1911 there were 16,461 graduates, 7,586 boys and 8,875 girls. Of the graduates 6,729 were preparing for college, 4,649 boys and 2,078 girls. The graduates numbered 12.6 per cent of the total secondary enrollment, and 40.87 per cent of the graduates had prepared for college.

Tables 20 and 21 summarize the enrollment by grades. Of the 1,979 schools, 1,841 reported the number of students in each year of the high-school course. Of the total secondary enrollment of 130,649, the number thus reported was 120,777. The number in the first year was 41,852, or 34.65 per cent of the total, in the second year 32,526, or 26.93 per cent of the total, in the third year 25,701, or 21.28 per cent of the total, and the number reported for the fourth year was 20,698, or 17.14 per cent of the total secondary enrollment. The fourth-year enrollment includes some students in classes above the fourth year of the high-school course. The percentages here noted are also exhibited at the beginning of this chapter in comparison with similar percentages for public high schools.

The classification of the private high schools and academies according to denominational or nonsectarian control is shown in Table 22, in three parts. Religious denominations control 1,280 of the 1,979 schools. These denominational schools have 7,362 of the 12,073 high-school teachers and 80,394 of the high-school enrollment.

Tables 23 and 24 give incomplete statistics of property and income. It is very difficult to procure from private and denominational schools statements relating to the financial affairs of the institution. Many of them decline to report even the item relating to libraries. In the libraries of 1,373 of the schools there were 2,340,502 volumes; 1,238 schools reported buildings and grounds valued at the aggregate of $89,354,802, while 1,108 schools had scientific apparatus and other equipment valued at $5,445,169. The money value of permanent endowment funds reported by 247 schools aggregates $25,926,792. During the year 501 schools expended $4,712,681 for sites, buildings, and permanent improvements. The total income reported by 977 schools was $9,100,871.

Table 25 shows the average number of teachers, students, and graduates to a school. Table 26 gives the enrollment in schools for boys only, in schools for girls only, and in coeducational schools.

COMBINED STATISTICS.

For the convenience of those who prefer to study certain statistics of secondary schools as a whole, some of the tables relating to public and private high schools have been combined and presented in Tables 27 to 34.

The 12,213 public and private high schools and academies had 57,240 instructors of secondary students and an aggregate enrollment of 1,115,326 students of high-school grade. There were 903,520 students in academic courses, 122,881 in commercial courses, 70,012 in technical or manual training, 19,926 in training courses for teachers, 22,230 in agricultural courses, and 37,904 in courses in domestic economy. Many students are reported in two courses.

There were reported 78,296 students preparing for college, 42,926 preparing for the classical course, and 35,370 for college scientific courses. The total number of graduates for 1911 was 136,442, and of these 48,119 were college preparatory students.

In the 12,075 public and private secondary schools there were 463,187 in the first year, or 41.90 per cent, 295,739 in the second year, or 26.75 per cent, 202,691 in the third year, or 18.34 per cent, and 143,837 in the fourth year, or 13.01 per cent.
